TEACHERS

Lillian V. Kelley	Grammar room
Gertrude Gilman	Intermediate room
Helen S. Chase	Primary room
Flora Palmer	Glencliff

The figures quoted above indicate that the enrollments in the Warren schools are continuing to decline. There are, at present, 70 scholars in the village school and 14 scholars in the Glencliff school. There are three grades at Glencliff with only one pupil each. This situation does not offer any competition for the students in these grades. There is ample room for the scholars at the Village School. Unless the gasoline and rubber situation becomes more serious than at the present writing, it would seem advisable to consider the closing of the Glencliff school. The government authorities assure us that the manpower shortage in the teaching profession is just as serious as the shortage of gasoline. If the conditions remain as at present, it would seem economically and educationally desirable to close this school.

A new fire escape was built in the fall. This will add to the safety of the Village building.

I would recommend that some more science equipment and supplies be purchased for the seventh and eighth grades. The army and navy are stressing the fact that we should teach as much science and mathematics as possible.

I wish to express my appreciation to the students and teachers for their cooperation in carrying out the many government activities that they have been required to perform during the past year. Both schools are participating in the sale of War Savings Stamps.

Respectfully submitted,
RICHARD A. MARTIN.
